Johnson is former Marine who, among other things, served as a Professional Military Education specialist for four-years at Marine Corps University in Quantico VA during the initial startup years. His PhD from Northwestern University in Chicago is in Education Policy Analysis and Administration, and his research includes empirical studies of factors and policies that impact professional development and professional identity. The first assessed military training programs across services, along with associated policies and regulations. The second was the National Security Study Group for the 21st Century/Hart-Rudman Commission. Johnson is the former Dean of Instruction at Department of Defense OIG. In that capacity, his office in 2003 initiated the first DODIG Georgetown leadership Program. That program still leads many OIG professionals of different Federal IG offices to a Master's Degree in Leadership from Georgetown University. It was also his office that assisted in developing the 2004 concept that the Inspector General for Defense submitted to the PCIE/ECIE. The proposal called for establishment of a PCIE Training and Development Institute to serve the Federal OIGs.

In March of 2004, Johnson was deployed to Iraq to serve continuously with the Special IG for Iraq Reconstruction (SIGIR) and the DODIG. He returned from Iraq to DODIG headquarters in July of 2007. In 2008, Johnson was detailed to the Special IG for Afghanistan Reconstruction to assist in the standup of this newly created IG office. Johnson became the Deputy IG for Afghanistan Operations and served in Afghanistan from 2008 to 2010.

Among his experiences, Johnson served as a public school District Superintendent in Wisconsin, and at different times and different levels, as an instructor; to include High School, College, and Graduate school levels.

Johnson is married to the former Janice Kay Arndt; 33 years. The Johnsons have three children (Dan, Julie, and Brian) and three grandchildren. Johnson's home of record remains Neenah Wisconsin, where he and his wife Janice grew up, and first met.
